CAMPUS

Founders meeting

closed: A meeting in Founders Quadrangle Wednesday night regarding the weekend arson incident was closed to the public and BG News reporters were physically barred from the meeting room.

A spokeswoman for Founders' resident advisory staff said the meeting was closed due to disciplinary action taking place inside. She refused to comment on who had ordered the meeting to be closed.

A small crowd of students gathered outside the room and wished to be admitted to the meeting to express their views, but were denied access.

Geek show: The comedy "The Nerd" continues tonight through Saturday with shows at 8 p.m. in Joe E. Brown Theatre. Also, there will be a Sunday matinee at 2. Tickets are $3.

STATE

Killings recorded: One of 13 suspects in the cult slayings of five family members wants to turn over his diary detailing the killings in return for leniency from prosecutors, a report said Tuesday.

The News-Herald of Willoughby quoted Gregory S. Winship's lawyer, John T. O'Connor, as saying the diary includes "specific and detailed information" about the night of the alleged killings. O'Connor declined to provide specifics about the diary.

O'Connor said Winship has valuable information to offer Lake County Prosecutor Steven LaTourette. He said Winship's diary includes "every event, every meeting" within the cult during a four-year span.

Winship and a fellow cult member also charged in the slayings of the Avery family members in Kirtland, Richard E. Brand, 26, agreed Monday in Kansas City, Mo., to waive their rights to extradition proceedings.

WORLD

Lebanon ravaged: Scores of people wounded in nine days of war between Lebanon's main Christian armies are dying in hospitals that have no power and little blood, medicine or clean water, police said Wednesday.

They said 365 people had been killed and 1,682 wounded since the battle for supremacy began Jan. 30 between nearly 20,000 soldiers commanded by rebel Gen. Michel Aoun and the Lebanese Forces militia of Samir Geagea, which has about 6,000 regulars and an estimated 30,000 reservists.

Many of the victims have been civilians, some of them Moslems killed or wounded by shells that strayed out of Christian territory.

On Wednesday, families in Christian East Beirut searched for relatives in hospitals where surgeons operated by candlelight.

Police said food was so short that some people fought over bread in Christian neighborhoods, where hundreds of thousands of people have spent a week or more in basements or bomb shelters.

HISTORY

On this date: In 1976 Peter Frampton — famed for his live album, "Peter Frampton Comes Alive" — wowed 4,500 listeners in Anderson Arena.

Reserved seats cost $6 for the event sponsored by University Activities Organization and Windy City Productions. UAO program director James Stofan said the concert was a big success even though drugs were used.

"There was apparently some pot smoking there, but there were no overdoses," he said.

Soviets concur party diversity is a necessity

by Ann Imse
Associated Press writer

MOSCOW — The Communist Party, that for decades swore its red tide would cover the globe, bowed to a different revolution Wednesday. The party agreed to allow alternative political parties to compete for control of the Soviet Union.

The decision amounts to an acknowledgement that new political forces have taken root and that it is no longer possible or desirable to crush them with the repressive tactics of the past, which ranged from mass murders under dictator Josef Stalin to the dissident arrests preferred by Leonid Brezhnev.

The decision by the party's Central Committee to give up the Communists' constitutional monopoly on power was a triumph of political maneuvering by President Mikhail Gorbachev. He packed the meeting of the 249-member body with more than 700 other officials, many of them progressives who took the floor to demand radical reform.

In the end, the guests also were allowed to vote on the new party platform, said Svyatoslav Fyodorov, a famed eye surgeon and one of the participants. He spoke in an interview on Red Square during a break in

Sheriff proposes drug strike force to curb problem

by John Kohlstrand
city writer

After a successful first year in the "War on Drugs" as the new county sheriff, Matthew Brichta is now trying to organize a Wood County drug strike force to intensify the war on drug traffickers and users.

The force would total about five officers donated from major Wood County municipal police forces, including a deputy, he said.

By coordinating efforts and information from area communities, such a force could be highly effective in combating what is a universal problem, Brichta said.

"We're committed to making it happen," Brichta said. "We recognize that it is a common problem and it is something we need to do."

For example, a dealer in Bowling Green with connections in Perrysburg or other county locations may be apprehended sooner and more easily by coordinating all of the information through a central office.

Anti-bias bill sought Incident condemned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawmakers of both parties, joined by the head of the Episcopal Church and Coretta Scott King on Wednesday, unveiled civil rights legislation designed to reverse recent Supreme Court rulings and help minorities and women fight job bias.

"Recent decisions of the court have reopened old wounds suffered in battles fought long ago," King told a news conference at which supporters called the measure the major civil rights bill now before Congress.

The bill launches a counterattack by congressional liberals and civil rights activists against a series of Supreme Court rulings last year. A newly solidified conservative court majority limited affirmative action and narrowed the scope of anti-bias laws.

Hearings in both the House and the Senate are set to begin within days.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., said approval at the committee level might be possible within three months.

The Bush administration has been saying there is no urgent need for the legislation. Attorney General Dick Thornburgh has said forecasts of dire problems involving job bias represent an overreaction to the court's rulings.

Thornburgh has promised that the Justice Department will monitor the effect of the rulings to determine if legislation is needed.

Kennedy said last year the Supreme Court "issued a series of rulings that mark an abrupt and unfortunate departure from its historic vigilance in protecting civil rights."

"The fabric of justice has been torn," Kennedy said.

University officials condemned Wednesday the racial incidents that occurred in Founders Quadrangle this weekend, directing their comments toward a student-initiated petition and vandalism of bulletin boards promoting Black History Month.

Vice President for Student Affairs Mary Edmonds, representing the University said, "Although they (some students in Founders Quadrangle) do not consider themselves prejudiced, they have demonstrated (prejudiced) behavior in their actions, in their vandalism of University property and in their petition."

Her statement stemmed from an incident in which Lowry Hall bulletin boards were torn down and defaced with racial slurs and the petition 14 students signed, stating they are "sick of" hearing about black, homosexual and other minority issues constantly displayed on bulletin boards.

"It is abhorrent that (these types of incidents) are still happening and people are so blatant with racist behavior," Edmonds said.

Another University administrator said students need to understand the posting of bulletin boards containing this information is guaranteed under the Constitution.

If residents are tired of hearing about it or looking at it, then they should just

Cafeteria wages rival restaurants

by Jeremy S. Weber
staff writer

Students scouring the local fast food restaurants in search of employment may be missing a job opportunity right here on campus.

In comparing Food Operations and local fast food restaurants, the starting wages, benefits and scholastic help of Food Operations is equal to, if not more than, fast food chains. (see graph)

Food Operations' starting wage of $3.75 per hour ranks second, trailing only Burger King's $3.80. Food Operations also offers bonuses— food coupons of $5.00 for working 12 hours or more per week, and $10.00 worth of coupons for 18 hours or more.

"I think it's a better opportunity than some of the local places because it's much closer to the living quarters of on-campus students," said Director of Food Operations Jane Schimpf. "We do a good job working around class schedules and they get to work with their peers."

Boost in rates necessary

Licking a big problem, and that's what the U.S. Postal Service Board is trying to do by raising the cost of stamps. The federal government's efforts to reduce the deficit are prudent, however, the problem may not be remedied that easily.

The board is proposing a 20 percent increase in the cost of stamps — the second price increase since 1988. It will be the largest ever if it is approved by the board March 6.

The increased stamp cost is an attempt to make up for an anticipated $1.6 billion deficit at the end of this fiscal year in September.

The five-cent increase on the standard 25-cent stamp price is intended to supplement the U.S. Postal Service's income, which had more than a $400 million surplus in the final quarter of 1989.

With a surplus like that, you wouldn't think the Postal Service desperately needed additional funds.

However, President George Bush is earnestly trying to put together a budget while staying within Gramm-Rudman guidelines. By cutting defense to an acceptable minimum (while attempting to allot more money for education and drug enforcement initiatives), Bush is trying to make ends meet.

Bringing in more money through raising the price of stamps is just one way he is attempting to strike an acceptable balance.

While this initiative may seem to be an unpleasant gesture, Americans will have to learn to make sacrifices to retire the enormous debt we have incurred at the hands of Ronald Reagan.

The increase is not fair, but it is merely a small indication of things to come. This seems to be a small price to pay in comparison to what the future holds if the national debt is not held in check.

Ohio gambling not in the cards

Rep. Ron Mottl, who gets the credit, or the blame, for bringing us the Ohio Lottery, is now pushing another idea: A scheme to allow betting on pro sports. Ohio would be the bookie, and profits would go to the state.

Certainly, the state could use more money for either cause. State-sanctioned gambling just isn't the way to get it. Instead, the legislature should identify any needs and have the courage to pass tax increases to cover them. That's the way responsible government works.

And the argument that legalizing sports gambling would wipe out illegal gambling is suspect. And with sports gambling, the bookies would still have a major appeal — the under-the-table winnings aren't reported to the IRS.

The odds simply run too high against any benefits. And Ohio doesn't need an expansion of official gambling.

Safety requires knowledge

When I was randomly picked out of the campus phone book to run for USG president, I knew a dominant issue at the University, and any university was campus safety.

In a USG poll of 410 students last Spring, 15.9 percent of those polled were the victims of theft once at the University. Three percent of these students had been assaulted once on campus.

Campus safety improvements are constant additions to our University. Better lighting in the heart of campus as well as in the outer parking lots, the upcoming addition of peepholes in all living unit doors, as well as programmable locks on the outer doors of greek houses are examples. In addition, a student run Campus Escort Service is available to safely deliver you to your destination at night. Not only should more people use it, students can do a great service by volunteering for the Escort Service. Incidentally, these people currently are not paid, but 77.4 percent of all our poll respondents think these escorts should be paid.

The safety of our students is also a concern in our nation's statehouses. Just last week, I testified before the Ohio House Subcommittee on Colleges and Universities in Columbus in favor of Bill 733 which would require colleges and universities to report, in a uniform way, their campus crime statistics to the Board of Regents and to the state. As well, this information is to be made available to students.

The President's Pen

by Kevin Coughlin
columnist

I support the bill for two reasons. First, it is important that there be a concrete uniform way of reporting crime statistics. Last year, BGSU ranked second in the nation in a USA Today report in terms of the crime level. Something's very wrong there. The reason is because what we report is different from what the next university reports. In fact, only 10 of Ohio's 120 campuses report to the FBI's Uniform Crime Report. Only 4 percent of our nation's institutions comply. More importantly, I support the bill because of the message it sends. Less than 50 percent of all college-aged people in the United States are in college. They are a select few and their safety must be a top priority.

As I was testifying, another point in favor of the bill occurred to me. There's nothing like waiting until the last minute, you know. It seems silly to have to tell someone something as simple as 'Don't walk alone at night' or 'Lock your door when you leave.' But I often read the blatter in the paper and wonder what some people were thinking when they were victimized. (i.e., What the heck were you doing walking around the golf course at four in the morning)? Knowledge is power, and the information these stats will provide will enable students to make common sense decisions about their safety.

The Undergraduate Student Government recognized the importance of this last semester when it passed a resolution supporting Bill 733's Pennsylvania forerunner. Five other states have adopted this policy and similar legislation is under consideration in the United States Congress. I am optimistic about the chances for success in the Ohio Statehouse for Bill 733 and it will be a continued commitment of your USG to lobby for its adoption.

It is only right that we compare apples to apples when comparing universities by campus crime stats. Otherwise, schools such as BGSU which have a decent reputation for safety efforts will again be categorized with such campuses as Ohio State or Cincinnati. Officials at those schools must be ringing their hands in fear of having to submit to a uniform crime report.

Above all, we must arm ourselves with the knowledge that our campus is not free of crime and we must be aware of common sense safety practices as well as what resources are available to us to ensure that our stay here is a safe one.

Letters

Support needed for more than one cause

To the Editor:
I am writing in response to a letter printed in the Jan. 31 edition of The BG News.

The writer initially assumes because a certain position happens to be held by a University minority that this position is less valid than the one held by the majority. I find this offensive and contrary to everything higher education is supposed to espouse. If my memory serves me correctly, many, if not most, movements in America began as minority movements; the civil rights movement is an excellent case in point.

Alexis de Toqueville, in his book "Democracy in America," maintained one of the dangers of democratic government is that the majority could solidify its position and act tyrannically against the positions of the minority. Obviously, this is what the writer advocates. I find the prospect frightening, and a potential threat to everyone's personal liberty.

The writer also attacks the pro-life material being circulated on-campus because it makes judgment calls, rather than appeals, based on a minority viewpoint. While there may be some validity to this point, I find it no worse than the knee-jerk logic employed when maintaining that because a parent does not provide their 14-year-old children with contraception, this somehow justifies abortion.

In the writer's closing statement, it appears to say there is some logical connection between being pro-life and not caring about "the elderly, the homeless, the disabled, and or abused." I fail to see this connection. I hope in my own life I will be noble enough to lend my support to both.

Student employees deserve funding

To the Editor:
The other night I received a very disturbing call from my supervisor in Offenbauer who informed me regular scheduled shifts of student employees showed a projected budget deficit and by the end of the year, I was going to lose a lot of my hours. When I heard this on my answering machine, I was not happy. I talked with my supervisor, and found out there was no way to get more hours unless I begged other employees. I am not much into begging, but I have no choice. This has to be a campus-wide problem, so I assume, but who is at fault?

I was told a budget increase was promised, which was not given. Without this increase there had to be cuts in student employees. This is because some office in the University hierarchy decided to raise the campus minimum wage to $3.65/hr, and I receive $3.85/hr since I have been a University employee for a few years. Why did the people who raised the minimum wage not allocate funds for the increases in student pay? You would think people with master's degrees and Ph.D.'s would be smart enough to see this, but it seems they're hoarding money for themselves so they can build unnecessary buildings and get raises.

I might be a little off base, but in the four years I have been a student, it seems President Olsen gets a raise every year. It seems unfair there is money for this and other things, but not enough for student employees. There are many students who count on this money to pay for tuition and books. I get some financial support from home, but I am one of the lucky ones. There are some students who are not so lucky.

I hope some of the University hierarchy are reading this, and I hope you get out of your reclining desk chairs and do something about it. When you were in school, I bet some of you paid your way and found it was hard. Without this budget increase it is going to make it harder for those who pay for school. Stop thinking about what wallpaper matches your carpeting, and think about the students for once. Remember, you were once where we are today.

Device aids college

Machine communicates with robots, computers

by J.J. Thompson
staff writer

An $85,000 machine given on consignment to the College of Technology should benefit students and faculty, as well as people outside of the University.

Richard Kruppa, professor of manufacturing and technology systems, said the vertical machining center will help the college in a number of ways.

It has the ability to communicate with other computers and robots, Kruppa said, and handle complex surfaces, such as an airplane wing or a boat hull.

In addition, it can manipulate parts up to 14 inches deep, 14 inches high, and 22 inches long, weighing as much as 550 pounds at speeds up to 6,000 rpm, he said.

The new machine will be used in classes on undergraduate and graduate levels, during independent studies, and for faculty research, he said. It is expected to provide opportunities for summer students and other external groups.

However, instructors in the College of Technology are not enthusiastic about the consignment just because of the machine's capabilities.

"It's part of a bigger plan," known as the Flexible Inspection and Automated Systems Project, said John Sinn, associate dean of the college.

He said the purpose of the five-year program is to combine production with the inspection for quality.

The consignment was made by Hurco Companies, Inc., of Indianapolis. Hurco entrusted the machine for the 1990 calendar year after a request from the College of Technology, Kruppa said.

'Pep Talk' informs students

by Emily Schroeder
staff writer

The Student Health Service Prevention Center now provides University students with a program devised to educate them on AIDS and date rape prevention.

The program, entitled "Pep Talk" — Peers Education Peers to Talk — is the result of combined efforts and concerns of counselors and advisers from the Prevention Center and the Wellness Center.

Barbara Kamm, program coordinator, described "Pep Talk's" primary goal as the education necessary to prevent AIDS and date rape.

Twenty peer facilitators have undergone training in order to know how to put together and present programs dealing with both AIDS and date rape prevention.

According to Kamm, graduate student, the peer facilitator training consists of:

- listening to guest speakers and experts talk on these subjects,
- learning the psychological aspects of each,

- participating in role playing,
- and taking a self-test to establish how much the peer facilitators already know about the topics.

"Most of the peer facilitators we now have, worked for the Well or some other help or crisis center and are experienced in counseling," Kamm said. An opportunity for students to train to become peer facilitators will be available on a semesterly basis.

"There are too many women who have already been victims," Kamm said. "We want to help them and to educate others so that it won't happen to them."

She does not believe the change in times has anything to do with the increasing popularity of help and crisis centers.

"There have always been rapes. I think students are just more perceptive of the problem and that we now know there is something we can do to help," Kamm said.

Letters sent to faculty, resident advisers, unit directors, campus leaders and organizations will better inform them of "Pep Talk's" programs and services and how to arrange for a presentation to be made for their group.

a closed-door meeting.

"Article 6 will no longer be, there will be a multiparty system. There will be a normal democracy," Fyodorov said, referring to the article in the Soviet Constitution that guarantees the Communists a leading role.

"We cannot rule out the emergence of new parties," Politburo member Vitaly Vorotnikov said in remarks reported by the official Tass news agency. "But we Communists are not going to surrender our positions. Just as any party in the world, we shall be waging a struggle for our rights."

Fyodorov said only maverick Communist Boris Yeltsin voted against the platform that called for abolition of Article 6, which calls the party the "leading and guiding" force in Soviet society.

Yeltsin favored a more radical program that demanded a virtual apology by the party for decades of totalitarianism.

After leaving the Central Committee meeting to greet U.S. Secretary of State James Baker III, Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze told reporters the decision by the party's policy-making body "moves us closer to a humane and democratic society."

The Soviets follow the lead set by their comrades in Eastern Europe, where one by one, Communist parties have bowed to democratic pressure.

Festival shows one-act plays

by Lori Miller
staff writer

A series of one-act plays will be performed at the University with the upcoming production of the third annual Shorts Festival.

The festival, scheduled for March 7-11, consists of three one-act plays each evening, concluding Sunday with the performing of all six acts, said Mary Callahan Boone, organizer of the event and doctoral student.

Shorts Festival '90 is different than other plays performed by the theater department for several different reasons, Boone said.

Ranging from the acting to the directing to the technical aspects, the plays are all student run, she said. One-act plays also give students a chance to try acting for the first time.

"It is a real opportunity for students who might be (intimidated) of larger shows to get in a chance of acting," she said.

On March 7 and 9, "Sand-box," "How It Hangs" and "The Nature and Purpose of the Universe" will be performed. The acts for March 8 and 10 will be "Catastrophe," "Trifles" and "Homefree."

All evening shows begin at 8 and the Sunday show begins at 2 p.m.

"It is called the Shorts Festival rather than one-act plays because we hope to leave it open to other forms of entertainment," Boone said.

Auditions for the shows begin Feb. 12-14 at 7 p.m. on the fourth floor of University Hall.

expressed hope that President Bush would end up signing the measure. "I would say it would be very difficult for him to veto this bill," Hawkins said.

Sen. Jim Jeffords, R-Vt., urged GOP lawmakers to support the legislation. He said the Supreme Court is "closing the door" on civil rights at a time "when prison doors in South Africa are swinging open."

"I am ashamed and I am embarrassed," Jeffords said.

The Rev. Edmond Browning, presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church, told the news conference that last year "our nation's highest court — heirs of a legacy of doing justice — turned their back on our nation's historical precedents and the important lessons of our civil rights history and did grave and severe damage...."

Freshman Melissa McAtee agreed. She said working at Food Operations has definite advantages over local fast food establishments.

"They were able to work me in the hours I wanted," McAtee said. "There are no late hours, and it pays more. It's a really convenient way to work."

Starting at the end of this year, Food Operations also will offer a scholarship, tentatively set for $250, to the student worker of the year.

In addition to the starting wage, Schimpf said 10-cent per hour increases are given for working more than 800 hours, and for working more than one year. The top wage for student workers is $4.30 per hour, she said.

Freshman Albert Miller said pay was a major reason he decided to work at Food Operations.

"It's a good job that pays well," he said. "There are harder jobs that pay less. It gives me pocket money, and it's just a nice system."

Schimpf described the work as tough, but said satisfaction among the student workers is high.

"I think the students are happy," she said. "We have a good group of kids and I think they enjoy what they are doing and are having a good time."

ignore it, according to Director of Multicultural Affairs Jack Taylor.

Edmonds said, "Apparently, there are some narrow-minded persons who tear down bulletin board items they don't care about and add their own derogatory comments. In doing so, they are denying the rights of other students to free expression."

She explained the goal of the resident advisers and Residential Services — through bulletin boards — is to give students the opportunity to mature in a comfortable environment by expanding their minds about people different from themselves, especially in racial or sexual orientation.

"Hopefully, when they get into the real world, they will be able to understand and to live successfully in a pluralistic society," she said.

Taylor and Edmonds described the issues which the petition condemned as "major issues in America."

"Do we, as human beings want to turn our backs on these issues?" Taylor said.

Ignoring these issues would be just like "sweeping them under the rug" and the reason bulletin boards containing information about these pressing issues is to educate students, Taylor said.

A Lowry Hall resident, questioned about the incident, claimed he is not prejudiced, only "tired of" the minority materials on the bulletin boards getting "pushed on us from all sides. The more I see it, the harder I get towards it," he said.

Taylor said, "if (students) are tired of being educated they have to question their reason for being at the University."

"Where is this person coming from?" he continued. "He is upset from constantly being reminded (of the issues stated in the petition), yet nothing can be changed until these issues are faced."

Taylor further described this quote and the reasoning of the petition as a "white backlash" in which students feel they must affirm their own culture.

When they do not perceive themselves as receiving attention during, for example, Black History Month, their feelings turn to anger and they believe they must "re-affirm" their culture, Taylor said.

However, this "gets to be ridiculous" because 95 percent of advertisements on this campus are geared toward whites and they are the dominant race in society, Taylor said.

In addition, the amount of Black History Month information appearing on the boards is not unreasonable, Edmonds said. The events are annually scheduled activities on this campus and should be publicized widely, she said.

According to Paula Smith, complex coordinator for Founders Complex, the incidents will be handled through the normal disciplinary areas of Founders' directors.

She refused to comment any further on the issue.

Drug war increases fines

Extra dollars are brought in by increased drug enforcement

by John Kohlstrand
city writer

Mandatory drug fines distributed to local law enforcement agencies in 1989 increased four-fold from the previous year, possibly resulting from the intensified fight against drugs.

According to the Wood County Clerk of Courts year-end report, the police department was paid $32,948 in mandatory drug fines — up from $8,293 the year before.

The sheriff received $33,350 last year, which is more than four times the 1988 figure.

The departments made two moves last year which helped increase the efficiency of their drug investigations, according to law enforcement leaders.

A city officer and a deputy were assigned exclusively to investigate drug cases, and both forces began extensive use of drug-sniffing dogs.

Bowling Green Police Chief Galen Ash said his officers always have found information on drug offenses in the city, but have not always had the resources to follow up on these leads.

However, the police force's drug-sniffing dog has become useful in recent months and has contributed to the department's drug investigations.

Sheriff Matthew Brichta said increased enforcement is just a part of his department's changing role.

"They responded to complaints, but they did not actually take the initiative to go out and investigate them," he said.

Merle Bush, administrative aide to the sheriff, said the department's drug arrests are definitely up — clearly indicated by the increased drug fines.

However, Rebecca Bhaer, county clerk of courts, said there may be other reasons for the increase in drug fines that are not related to law enforcement.

Better collection methods for the fines and a general crack-down at the judicial level could also have played major roles, she said.

Fines assessed to convicted drug offenders are returned to their respective arresting agencies under a recent state law that allows the departments to put these funds back to use in their anti-drug efforts.

Celebrezze vies for campus votes

by Wynne Everett

Celebrezze's Campus Campaign Coordinator Jeff Berding said Celebrezze will rely heavily on Ohio college students to help build his education platform.

"This is pretty unprecedented," said Berding, a fall graduate of Miami University. "Much of our platform will come from student issues and concerns. They are, after all, the consumers of education and their concerns should be foremost."

Celebrezze will meet with student body presidents from Ohio colleges next Thursday in Columbus to discuss their views concerning higher education in the state.

"It's important students understand they are important. This will give (Celebrezze) a chance to sit down and just talk to these presidents and see where their major concerns lie," he said.

Although University Student Government President Kevin Coughlin said he will be unable to attend the meeting, Bowling Green Campus Democrats President Greg Richey will.

"We definitely want to help with the education platform," Richey said. "We're excited to be involved in the process."

Berding said Celebrezze will also talk with faculty representatives from Ohio schools as well as the Ohio Board of Regents before his education platform is completed in late April.

Celebrezze is relying on college Democrat groups to collect signatures for the petition to add his name to the ballot and to register voters through grass-roots campaign work, Berding said.

Richey said his organization is actively involved in the petition drive and plans continuing action in the Celebrezze campaign.

"We're here to help," he said. "We're going to help with the petitions that are due next week and then we'll look forward to other things, but we don't have any specific plans yet."

Berding said Celebrezze considers a campus focus a key to the success of his campaign because of the recent conservative trends in political affiliation of Ohio college students.

"By getting our message out on campuses, we'll get the vote despite what the polls may say about trends," Berding said. "People think campuses are increasingly Republican, but Democratic support is out there. We want to reach that."

Blotter

□Police confiscated two switchblades and a bag of marijuana from two subjects behind DJ's, 809 S. Main St., Sunday.

□A false ID was confiscated at Quarters Cafe, 107 State St., Sunday.

□A woman reported the plate glass window in front of the BG Tan and Fitness Center, 127 S. Main St., was shattered by two youths Sunday.

□Christopher Snodgrass, of Nevada, was arrested Sunday for shoplifting at Harts, 1094 N. Main St., police said, after he allegedly attempted to steal five packs of cigarettes and a pack of gum.

□A resident reported a man wearing nothing but a trench coat and sneakers riding a bicycle down Fairview Avenue Saturday.

□Aaron D. Williams, 18944 Mercer Road, was arrested for underage drinking Saturday, police said.

□Kelly P. Greny, of Maple Heights, was stopped for speeding and then arrested for possession of marijuana Saturday, police said.

□Rodney H. Scheck, of Toledo, was arrested for disorderly conduct Saturday, police said, after he allegedly removed a spotlight from a sign in the 100 block of East Court Street.

□Mark's Pizza Pub, 532 E. Wooster St., confiscated two fake IDs Saturday.

□The jaw and cheekbone of a Bowling Green man were broken in a fight at Cassidy's, 176 E. Wooster St., Friday night. According to witnesses, the victim's girlfriend was struck by another student. When he tried to intervene, his hands were held behind his back and another person struck him. Police are still investigating.

□Shane K. Ash, 480 Lehman Ave., was arrested for disorderly conduct Saturday.

Strike Force

Bowling Green Police Chief Galen Ash said he has not been formally approached by the sheriff about the strike force, but has caught word of it from other sources.

"In theory, it's a good idea, but I'm not sure that we in Bowling Green would benefit," he said.

While coordinating information from different sources is a good concept, Bowling Green police already follow information leading to other areas.

"We are basically doing that now," Ash said. "Our investigations often go out into the other cities and areas in the county."

Brichta said other benefits of a strike force would include less confusion over jurisdiction between varying community forces investigating the same cases.

"This may reduce the man hours that would have to be put into a case like that in apprehending a drug trafficker," the sheriff said.

Ash said when Bowling Green police are investigating cases leading to other communities, they ask for assistance when needed from city and county agencies.

City officers have already worked with other cities and counties and a recent case had them working with Lucas County officials, he said.

Plans already constructed are informal, Brichta said, and there is no guarantee that a county-wide strike force will take form.

"A lot of it will be determined by how much money we have," Brichta said. The sheriff said he hopes such a group could fund itself with money through the Mandatory Drug Fine program.

By state law, fines imposed on drug-law violators are returned to the arresting police agencies to be put back into the drug war. Last year, the sheriff's department received $33,350 — more than quadruple the 1988 figure, according to a Wood County Clerk of Court's report.

If a county-wide strike force cannot be organized in the next several months, he will try to organize an inter-county group along the same principles.

Law enforcement agencies need to work together on this common problem because it continues to threaten Americans, he said.

Albers leads Falcons over Miami

by Charles Toil
assistant sports editor

OXFORD, O. — The belt on the Mid-American Conference standings got a little tighter Wednesday night when the women's basketball team defeated first-place Miami 65-58 at Millett Hall.

Third-place BG is now 7-3 in the MAC, while Miami dropped to 9-1. Toledo, which posted a 86-68 win over Ohio University, remains in the second at 7-2.

Lori Albers' two consecutive steals for easy layups and Bowling Green's free throw shooting proved to be the difference at the end.

With 2:44 left, Albers, who had 18 points and nine rebounds, broke a 53-53 tie when she stole a pass from D'Nelle Seiple at the top of the key and raced down court for the layin.

Less than 30 seconds later, the 470 fans received a glimpse of deja vu when Albers stole the ball again from Seiple at nearly the same spot and scored another easy basket to put BG up 57-53.

Albers

"I was getting pinned and I thought if I could just get out one more step I could take a big leap at it (the pass)," Albers said. "I don't think she was ready for me because I had just gotten hurt. I don't think she thought I was really that quick."

Albers sustained a thigh bruise on her left leg at the 6:25 mark. She returned 1:15 later.

Miami head coach Linda Wunder said the steals were a turning point in the game.

"When you're in a close game like this, you can't give up two steals and easy layups," she said.

Despite the steals, the Redskins didn't quit. Heidi Blomberg connected on a jumper and then Adrienne Spatz brought the crowd to its feet when she hit a three-pointer to pull Miami within 59-58 with 44 seconds left.

But that would be as close as MU would get. Albers made two free throws with 22 seconds to play and Tecca Thompson scored four of her 16 points on two free throws and a layup in the final five seconds.

"We have moved into the direction now that maybe we can do some contending," BG head coach Fran Voll said. "We're a better basketball team now than we were a month ago. There's no question that we've improved and I think this is a good example today by beating Miami."

The Redskins held the lead for most of the second half until BG tied the game at 43 on a Wanda Lyle free throw with 9:52 remaining.

A foul shot by Angie Bonner, who scored 16 points and grabbed nine rebounds in 40 minutes of action, gave BG its second lead of the second half 44-43 a minute later.

BG held the advantage until the 4:22 mark, when Seiple scored a layup to make the score 51-all. The Redskins took their last lead of the night when Julie Howell (10 points, nine rebounds) made a jump shot 36 seconds later.

Traci Gorman then made two free throws to tie the game at 53-53, 16 seconds before Albers' first steal.

"(Gorman) is a experienced ball player," Voll said. "Tecca, Angie and Traci have the type of experience that we need. The rest of the group has come along because of those three people. They've given us something that we've needed to hang onto and it's just starting to show in the last month."

Although the Redskins lost for the first time in the MAC, Wunder appreciated their play.

"I can't complain about our defensive effort and the effort the team put out," Wunder said of her squad, which came in allowing a league-low 58 points per game. "They played extremely hard — the shots just didn't fall."

In the first half, BG sprinted to a 9-4 advantage after Gorman, who scored 12 points, hit a jumper at the 16:22 mark. A little more than 30 seconds later, an Albers jumper made the score 11-6.

MU came back when Gaby

Redskins nip BG 93-91 in OT

Larranaga blasts officials following team's sixth MAC loss

by Mark Huntebrinker
sports writer

OXFORD, O. — The Miami Redskins put the word "race" back into the Mid-American Conference men's basketball picture Wednesday night.

MU, which had lost three of its last four conference contests coming in, overcame a 10-point, second-half deficit to defeat Bowling Green 93-91 in overtime.

While the Redskins (10-10 overall, 7-3 in MAC play) came from behind in Millett Hall, the Eastern Michigan Hurons were busy escaping from Muncie, Ind., with a 58-57 victory over top-running Ball State.

The result leaves MU just one game behind the 8-1 Cardinals, with 6-3 Kent State alone in third place.

The Falcons, on the other hand, found out they're just three points away from joining the aforementioned squads in the MAC's upper echelon. BG suffered a one-point loss to Ball State at Anderson Arena on Saturday.

Falcons' head coach Jim Larranaga, whose team fell to 13-8, 4-6, said a good effort by both teams was diminished by officiating crew of Jerry Petro, George Demos and Mick Secrest.

"I was extremely disappointed in the officiating. I thought it was very inconsistent. We're supposed to have a gag rule," said Larranaga of a regulation which is supposed to deter coaches from speaking negatively of officials. "Well, I'd like to have a consistent rule."

Larranaga cited inconsistency in calls inside the lane and a ruling after an early second-half scuffle.

During the incident, Redskins center Jim Paul was called from a technical foul after disagreeing with a traveling call. Push came to shove after the whistle and the result was a technical foul on BG's Steve Watson for incensing Paul.

"Anybody who has followed Bowling Green and was at the Ball State game saw what incensing another player was all about," Larranaga said. "The Ball State players antagonized us for 40 minutes and not one technical foul was called on them."

"...The technical foul on Steve Watson for inciting — now that's a joke. And Jerry Petro needs to learn a little bit more about officiating consistently if he wants to work in this league."

Clinton Venable and Tim Stewart made both free throws for the respective teams after the technicals. After the smoke had cleared, BG led 58-54 with 12:11 to play in the game.

MU proceeded to score the game's next seven points to take a 61-58 lead at the 10:43 mark.

But BG bounced back to gain a 74-65 advantage on three-straight Venable baskets. Venable scored a career-high 31 points while dishing out five assists. He was a perfect 12-of-12 from the free throw line.

The Redskins, as was the case all evening, crept back into the contest behind the stellar play of David Scott and Stewart. The duo led MU with 25 and 23 points, respectively.

A pair of Craig Michaelis free throws tied the score at 81-all with 37 seconds left. The Falcons failed get a shot off in regulation as the final 37 seconds ran off the clock.

BG drew first blood in overtime on an Ed Colbert free throw, but the Redskins proceeded to take an 87-84 lead on a Chip Reeves jump shot with 2:03 left. Those were the lone points for Reeves on the night.

Venable made good on a shot from beyond the three-point arc at the other end to knot the score at 87. On the next possession, the Redskins' Scott was fouled as he made a driving layup. Scott made the free throw to make the score 90-87 with 1:11 to go.

With 22 seconds remaining and MU ahead 92-89, Cedric VanLeer had a chance to put the game on ice but missed the front end of his one-and-one free throw attempt.

Reeves grabbed the rebound, though, and passed to VanLeer.

Emerson ranks as BG's all-time best

by Don Hensley
sports writer

Nelson Emerson just wants to be remembered as one of the spokes that made Bowling Green hockey successful.

But to say Emerson is just a spoke is like saying the Empire State Building is just a dwelling.

You see, for the last four years Emerson has stood taller than any player to ever don a Falcon uniform. And to prove this you need look no further than the Falcon record books.

He currently ranks first in career assists, Central Collegiate Hockey Association assists, CCHA points and also career points.

It was the latter that brought the BG Ice Arena to a roar last Saturday night. It happened with 3:07 left in the first period.

Emerson slid the puck to defenseman Rob Blake who rifled a shot toward the Miami net. It hit the post and Peter Holmes was there to put the rebound in. It was just like so many other Falcon goals, only this one gave Emerson an assist and his 271st career point, putting him atop the BG record books and into ninth on the NCAA all-time list for career points.

"It was a fantastic feeling and something I don't think I'll ever forget," said Emerson about the record breaking point. "It was something I'll never forget. Many years down the road I will think back and remember that night in Bowling Green."

For Emerson, the record chase was full of expectations, but not much pressure.

"It was something I was shooting for and one of the goals I set for myself in the beginning of the year," the senior center said. "I was hoping it would eventually happen so I didn't put pressure on myself. I knew that if we went out and played well it would come naturally."

Naturally is the way to describe Emerson and the game of hockey. When he's on the ice he has that look as if he was born to be there. Such was the case as the Waterford, Ontario, native began skating when he was 2 and by the time he had reached the age of 4 he was playing in organized leagues.

"My dad made a rink for me in our backyard and that's how I learned to skate," Emerson said. "It was the thing to do, the river would overflow and we would play hockey."

So thus was the start of a lifetime of hockey that would see the interpersonal communication major develop into one of the all-time great college hockey players.

He quickly moved from the pee-wee leagues up the ladder before playing his junior hockey with the Stratford Cullitons. It was here in 1985 that Emerson was chosen by the St. Louis Blues in the third round of the National Hockey League draft.

But instead of turning pro like many players who are drafted in the junior leagues, Emerson instead turned toward college and an education.

"I decided to come to BG because I felt we had a chance to win a championship my freshman year, but I expected to spend time as a fourth line center," he said. "I could have went to another school and played on the power play and killed penalties right away."

"But I knew coming to BG we would have a competitive team, good coaching and good players."

Emerson wasn't the only person happy with what he saw. BG coach Jerry York and his coaching staff were more than happy to see Emerson put on the Falcon uniform.

"When we recruited Nelson we knew we had an outstanding young player coming into our program," said York, who ironically recorded his 400th victory the same night Emerson broke the record. "He has tremendous skills and was a blue chip recruit."

"But even more importantly from my perspective, he is an outstanding young man to coach. It's a pleasure to have someone like him on our team."

Emerson proved his worth almost immediately as he helped the Falcons to a CCHA regular season title as a freshman when he recorded 68 points, with 22 of them coming on goals. These numbers were good enough for Emerson to earn CCHA Rookie of the Year honors.

"A lot of the older players wanted to see what I could do," Emerson said about his rookie campaign. "I looked up to the older guys on the team. (Iain) Duncan really helped me out because he was one of the best wings in the nation and was on my line."

"Paul Ysebaert helped me out a lot my freshman year and owe him a lot of the credit."

Because of Emerson's instant success, other teams began paying heed to the fact that he was the spark of the Falcons attack. So much so that during the last few years teams have gone as far as to put players on Emerson just to shadow him around the ice.

"Every night I really have to come to play because the other teams will try to match lines and shut me down," he said. "My goal chances may be down because of it but I'm still going to get my points by passing the puck. I try not to let it affect me and I think it has really helped my mental part of the game."

"It has also taught me to work hard and not get frustrated. If I get frustrated I get in a slump."

Throughout the years, the toughest player for Emerson to deal with has been Rob Brown of Michigan. It's not that Brown is a cheap shot player, he just plays the game the way it is meant to be played.

"I respect what he does," said Emerson, who currently has 60 points this season, 20 of them goals. "He's not going to have his stick in your throat. He just checks and works hard."

What makes Emerson's career even more impressive is the fact that although he is not

Stowe eager for Reds' spring

CINCINNATI (AP) — Baseball's owners and players are at odds in a dispute that might force cancellation of spring training, but veteran Cincinnati Reds equipment manager Bernie Stowe is still ready to go. He said he isn't frustrated by the lack of progress in the collective bargaining talks between owners and the players' union. "I've talked to other clubs and everyone's sitting on hold," he said. "It's just like any other year, really."

Baseball has been without a basic agreement since Dec. 31. Team owners meet to vote Friday and are threatening a lock-out of players from spring training beginning Feb. 15.

"Every year about this time, I start getting excited."

when we had to. We have had too many games this year when we've had opportunities to do that, but we didn't cash in — tonight we did," Peirson said.

In the first half, the Falcons jumped to a 14-7 lead at the 14:24 mark. But the Redskins fought back to trim the deficit to 16-15 behind consecutive three-point bombs by Michaelis and Stewart.

Backed Venable for BG was Johnson with 17 points. Forward Tom Hall, who made his first start of the year because of Moore's illness, had 16 points and a game-high 16 rebounds.

Paul had 15 points and eight rebounds and Michaelis had 11 points for Miami.

who was fouled by Watson. VanLeer virtually put the game away by making his first foul shot as BG could only muster a Joe Moore followup with four seconds left.

Larranaga said the Falcons were tired down the stretch due to a flu-ridden Moore and an injury to Derrick Kizer's knee.

MU head coach Jerry Peirson said the end result was due to perseverance on the part of his team.

Emerson

big in stature — 5-foot-10, 175 pounds — he has been able to avoid injury and become the first player in BG history to post four seasons of 60 or more points.

"I've never missed a game because of injury," Emerson said. "The fact that I can see all of the players on the ice helps. I used to get run all the time in junior hockey and I learned how to take a hit. I'm also big enough to take the physical part of the game."

It will take this type of willingness to be hit if Emerson is to make it to the NHL. For Emerson though, his senior year was almost for naught as he pondered leaving early for the pros.

"I sat down with the people that were important to me and made a list of the pros and cons," he said. "On the side to leave was only dollar signs and a higher caliber of playing."

"But not too many people get the chance to earn a college degree and then still get the chance to play in the pros and get paid for it. The Blues supported my decision."

Now as the season winds down and Emerson prepares for his journey to the next level of competition, he gets closer and closer to fulfilling his dream.

"I'm really excited about the next step because it has always been a dream of mine to make money playing hockey," he said.
"I will be so elated that someone is going to give me money to play."

But no matter what happens, it will be hard to top the feelings that went through Emerson when he put on the Team Canada sweater and represented his home country in the Spengler Cup last December.

"That was probably my highest thrill in hockey, I was in the clouds the whole time," he said. "It was such a fast paced game and the Russians were so good. If you dumped the puck in, they never gave it back."

So much has happened and so much has yet to happen for Emerson. It could not have been predicted four years ago when Emerson made the trek south to BG.

"He's one of those players that we thought if he could stay healthy for four years he could accomplish a lot of things," York said. "But that's a difficult thing to place on a boy's shoulders when they come to college hockey."

But Emerson continues to live his life by the motto that was once told to him. "Use hockey, don't let it use you."

And no one has used hockey quite like Nelson Emerson.
